

2017 PRIORITY LEGISLATORS

The first step in legislative advocacy is to contact your state representatives, and schedule a time to meet them in person to talk to them about the issues. Once you have talked to your legislators, you can use this list to focus your advocacy efforts. PICC and the ACLU have put together this “priority list” of state legislators based on their past votes and the demographics of the districts that they represent.

Leadership of the House and Senate, especially of the majority party, have a great deal of power in deciding what bills come to a vote or are moved through committees.
